Drop All But 2 B. E. Valley Steam Trains If State Permits Motor Bus Service

Penna. Railroad Officials Say Trains Cannot Compete With Motor Bus on Short Trips on New State Highway Without Loss to Stockholders.

If the State Public Service Commission grants a permit for the operation of a motor bus line on the new Bald Eagle valley concrete highway, the Pennsylvania Railroad will withdraw all passenger trains on the Bald Eagle valley branch, between Bellefonte and Tyrone, except the two Lehigh trains.

This is the ultimatum of Pennsylvania Railroad officials, after thorough consideration of the possibilities of attempting to compete with steam trains against the motor bus. "It can't be done," is the decision of the railroad company officials. Convinced by their company's experience in other sections, Pennsylvania officials say they do not purpose trying to do the impossible should the motor bus become established on a direct line between Tyrone and Lock Haven.

Residents of the Bald Eagle valley want a motor bus service because of its general convenience. Frequency of trips and possibly lower rates of fare are the chief factors that attract business for the motor bus.

Railroad officials contend that steam trains cannot compete with the motor bus because of a wide difference in operating costs and overhead charges. The motor bus, they point out, has a roadbed provided for it at the expense of the State, that its operating costs are merely nominal, and that its overhead, or maintenance costs is trifling as compared with those of a railroad system.

Just how the matter will appeal to stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad remains to be seen. It is said that there are over 300 Pennsylvania Railroad stockholders in Bellefonte, alone, and several times that number scattered over Centre County. Loss in revenue to the railroad company will not, of course, improve the value of the company's stock.

The matter will be before the Public Service Commission at a hearing at Harrisburg on April 23rd. There are two applications for permits for motor bus service to be considered at that time. Appearing in support of one or both applications will be residents of the Bald Eagle valley. The Pennsylvania Railroad will be represented by counsel who will set forth the company's position, how it would be affected financially and what steps would become necessary to protect stockholders from heavy and continuous loss.

Recently the Public Service Commission refused a permit to Harry Johnson, of Bellefonte, for a motor bus line between Tyrone and Bellefonte. It ruled that with present steam railroad passenger service a motor bus line was not needed.

It is stated unofficially that with the exception of the two Lehigh trains, passenger traffic on the Bald Eagle valley branch is now handled at an average loss to the railroad company. This will no doubt come to most persons as a surprise. Based on observation it has been the general belief that the passenger traffic through the valley has been a steady money-maker for many years. It appears, however, that such is not the case. Illustrating this, it is said, more than fifty percent of the school children who travel daily in Bald Eagle valley trains ride free on passes. This is because they are children of railroad employes.

Mail and express over the Bald Eagle valley branch have served to make up for the narrow margin of profit, or no profit at all, in passenger traffic. How the mails and express matter, particularly from the west, will be handled if the Pennsylvania cuts out all passenger trains except the two Lehigh trains, is a problem that has not thus far been solved.

The old Central Railroad Co. of Penna., operating between Bellefonte and Mill Hall, was the first local road to abandon its service in this section. This was some years ago. The advent of the motor truck was perhaps not the controlling factor, but it contributed nevertheless.

The motor bus was the direct cause of the collapse of passenger service on the Bellefonte Central Railroad, between Bellefonte and State College. The company made a desperate struggle to operate its passenger trains, but after continuous daily loss found that it couldn't compete and finally quit. It is now devoted to freight traffic.

Just what the future has in store for Bald Eagle valley in the matter of steam passenger trains remains to be seen.

RAID AT STATE COLLEGE

State Police Capture Four Bootleggers; One Old Offender.

E. S. Moore and Oliver Borst, of Ferguson township, were arrested on Friday evening by State Police, charged with the manufacture and illegal possession of moonshine liquor. A large still and four gallons of moonshine were confiscated. Both men were committed to jail in default of bail for a further Tuesday evening, before 'Squire Caroline Dale, of State College.

Leslie Wands, an old offender in bootlegging circles, was also arrested in State College by State Police on Friday evening. Two pint bottles of liquor were found on his person. At a hearing before 'Squire Dale later in the evening, he was charged with illegal possession of whiskey and resisting an officer. He was held for a further hearing on Tuesday evening and committed to jail in default of $1500 bail on the liquor charge and $500 on the charge of resisting an officer.

On Saturday evening, Sergeant Buckley and Private and Private Leister arrested Frank Scalbica, of Sunnyside, when a search of his home revealed 1 quart of moonshine, 50 gallons of wine and 30 gallons of raisin mash. He was brought before 'Squire Woodring the same evening and after waiving a hearing, furnished bail, to the amount of $1000 for his appearance at May term of court.

At the hearing on Tuesday evening before 'Squire Dale, Moore was released on $2000 bond, for his appearance at the May term of court and Borst was discharged for lack of evidence. Wands was committed to jail in default of bail, for his appearance at May court.

FOX HELD FOR COURT.

Driver of Death Car Held Under $4000 Bail at Hearing.

LeRoy A. Fox of Lock Haven, driver of the car in which William H. Henderson met death on the evening of March 21, was held for May term of court under bond to the amount of $4000, at a hearing before 'Squire Woodring on last Thursday afternoon, on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

Fox with a carload of other men, was enroute to State College to witness the basket ball elimination matches when the accident in which Henderson met death, happened. The commonwealth presented as witnesses C. Shuey, driver of the Emerick motor bus company, Miss Ruth Waite, of Bellefonte, a passenger in the bus, and Clark Ohl, driver of the other car which figured in the accident The defense attorneys, W. H. Runkle of Bellefonte and Henry Hipple, of Lock Haven, called no witnesses.

Jacob Cole Enters Suit.

Through his attorney, R. A. Henderson, Jacob H. Cole last week entered suit in the Blair county courts, claiming $1,000 damages from P. J. Durbin, of Altoona, the latter having struck Mr. Cole with his automobile on February 8, last, while he was crossing the street. Mr. Cole is a resident of Bellefonte but was spending several months in Altoona at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Love, when the accident occurred. Durbin is charged with operating his car in a careless and unlawful manner.

Parachute Saves Aviator.

When the motor of his Curtiss pursuit plane stalled when the machine was at an elevation of 10,000 feet over the Allegheny mountains in Sullivan County, Lieutenant J. T. Johnson, United States Army aviator, last Saturday afternoon jumped in a parachute. He landed in an apple tree a mile north of Sonestown after a thrilling drop through heavy clouds. His plane fell on a farm near Eaglesmere, four miles away. The aviator, who has been a pilot since 1917, had never before made a parachute jump.

Truck Load of Beer Seized.

A large truck containing 14 half barrels of 4% beer, was seized by State Police nearby Pine Grove early on Wednesday morning. The truck had upset in a ditch along the road and the driver had abandoned it. Persons living in that vicinity reported the matter to 'Squire Caroline Dale, at State College, who immediately informed the State Police. The contents of the wrecked truck were loaded into another car and brought to Bellefonte where the beer was stored in the county ja"

HIGHER FIRE INSURANCE FOR HOMES COMES NEXT

Residence Owners Fear Same Deal Given Business Section.

BRANDED AS OUTRAGE

Property owners in the business section of Bellefonte who read the article on fire insurance rates being increased in "The Republican" last week and who held out hopes that the matter had been magnified are beginning to awaken to the true situation, now that bills for new policies are being received. The new rates became effective with all policies issued after April 1st, and the increases revealed with the mailing of bills have rudely shocked property owners.

In some instances, the increases are even greater than was anticipated. As a result, every business building in Bellefonte will be forced into a greatly increased scale of operating expense in the future. The recent increase of 5 mills in County tax will contribute to this.

It is said that the only reason the Underwriters Association did not make the increased fire insurance rates apply to residences as well as business section property on April 1st was that public indignation was feared. Rates on residences will be increased in another year it is believed.

Just how some of the large business buildings in Bellefonte have been hit by the increased rates may be understood when it is explained that it will cost one central building alone upward of $800 more than ever before. It will cost another business building nearly $500 more for the same amount of fire insurance. The increase ranges from 80 to 95 cents per hundred dollars of insurance. That is, new policies cost the old rate and from 80 to 95 cents per hundred dollars in addition.

Unless the Underwriters Association can be forced to bring their rates somewhere within reason, higher rents can not be avoided in all business properties. With increased fire insurance rates on residences in another year, higher rents will become necessary also.

Seemingly the Underwriters Association is determined to enforce the new rates with a club. The people of Bellefonte are scheduled to be gouged to the extreme limit, and their only avenue of escape is by transferring their fire insurance to mutual and other companies not connected with the Underwriters Association. This many property owners are preparing to do, and the number will increase as policies expire.

Viewed from any angle, the jump in insurance rates is the hardest blow Bellefonte has received in many a year. It is conceded upon all sides that taxes in in Bellefonte are far beyond those in many other places. It is not denied that Bellefonte has adequate fire protection equipment. This is demonstrated to be a fact, since the Underwriters Association has not even requested or recommended additional equipment.

The only explanation for the increased insurance rates is that the insurance companies are out to get the money.

W. J. Emerick on Hospital Board.

At a meeting of the directors of the Centre County Hospital on Tuesday evening, Col. W. Fred Reynolds tendered his resignation to take effect at once. The reason given for the unexpected move was the press of other business which prevented him from properly looking after hospital affairs. William J. Emerick, who played no small part in the recent drive for funds, was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church and of the Women's Guild of the Lutheran church were present and made substantial gifts of necessary hospital supplies for their organizations. The building committee reported that the new wing is well under way and progressing with as much speed as could be expected.

B. H. S. Glee Club Play.

The musical comedy "The Girl From Babylon," given by the B. H. S. Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Alberta M. Krader, far surpassed any like production ever before given by the High School students. On Wednesday evening, the first night of the play, the Moose Temple Theatre was jammed to capacity by a highly appreciative audience. The plot of the piece is up to date and extremely interesting while the scenes embracing the smaller children were beautiful and extremely well carried out. All of the leading characters portrayed their various parts well, and carried off difficult scenes with the grace of professionals.

NIGHT AIR MAIL JUNE 1.

Bellefonte to Have One of Four Largest Lights in United States

A notable visitor in Bellefonte this week was J. F. Whitbeck, of New York, who is in charge of air mail fields and who came here to inspect the new local field, which is located about five miles west of Bellefonte.

The new hangar and other buildings are now about 70% completed, and it is expected they will be ready for use on May 15th. The contracts with the Bell Telephone company and the Keystone Power company were completed on Wednesday. Plans are now under way for the installation of one of the largest electric lights in the world. This light will be of one-half billion candle power. There are only three more such lights in the United States. They will be stationed at Cleveland, Omaha, and New York.

Work is now in progress for the building of 29 emergency fields between New York and Cleveland. These fields are to be 14.7 miles apart. 400 men are being used in the construction of the fields.

The light which is expected to be used at the Bellefonte field has been imported from France. It contains what is known as the Freshnel lens, specially designed for aiding night flying. This immense light which will flood the field is so constructed that the rays will reach only a height of six feet, and will not blind the pilot of a landing ship. The glass alone for these lens cost the U. S. government $4800. Night flying in this section of the country is sceduled to begin June 1st, but due to unforeseen delays may not be started before July 1st.

DUNSMORE FOR JUDGE

Strongly Recommended as Successor to Late Judge Witmer.

Advices from Washington are that United States District Attorney Andrew B. Dunsmore, of Tioga County will likely be appointed Federal Judge for the Middle District, to succeed the late Judge Charles B. Witmer, of Sunbury. By reason of his long experience as United States District Attorney, his being thoroughly familiar with the duties of the position, and his high rank at the bar, Mr. Dunsmore has been strongly recommended to President Coolidge, who has the making of the appointment.

Mr. Dunsmore has for many years been prominently identified with public affairs. He was for some years an influential member of the Legislature. He served as United States District Attorney, retiring during the term of President Wilson, and was again chosen for that responsible post by President Harding. He is eminently respected because of his broad legal knowledge and the admirably impartial and at the same time energetic manner in which he has prosecuted all cases for the government. He is indeed well equipped to maintain the high degree of efficiency which marked the service of the late Judge Witmer. Mr. Dunsmore's appointment would be most pleasing to members of the Centre County bar who appear in the Middle District Court.

New Mail Rates in Effect.

Changes in the postal rates which went into effect on Wednesday do not apply to letter mail. Private and picture postcards pay two cents instead of one, and the half cent stamp will only be needed on circulars, printed matter and merchandise in packages not exceeding eight ounces in weight, the rate on these being one and one-half cents for each two ounces. The greatest increases is upon parcel-post packages, the size limits being decreased, and the rates increased, and upon the insurance rates. To the users of this facility the postoffice now offers a "special handling service" for which twenty-five cents will be asked. This means that parcel-post packages thus marked—and paid for—will be handled just as first-class mail is now handled, while the "special delivery" will continue to mean that delivery will only be expedited on arrival at the office of destination.

Cheverolet Badly Damaged.

Sunday afternoon a new Cheverolet touring car, driven by Mrs. Thompson, accompanied by Miss Lena Eckley, of Coleville, was badly damaged, when the former endeavored to turn the car at the intersection of High and Thomas streets. The car being just about turned when Mrs. Thompson lost control, bounded into the gutter then onto the sidewalk taking with it A. L. McGinley's Ford, which was parked at the side of his residence, pushing it up onto the terrace into a fence. Luckily no one was injured, the only damage done in the collision was a badly broken light and radiator, a bent fender on the Chevrolet while the Ford escaped injury.

KIWANIANS MEET.

Hear Interesting Talk by Dr. Nixon, Potato Wizard.

The Kiwanis Club held their weekly luncheon at the Brockerhoff on Tuesday evening. Dr. E. L. Nixon, "Potato Wizard" of State College, was the main speaker. He emphasized that improvement in agriculture in Centre County relates to better business, and as business and professional men, Kiwanians who are interested in improving Bellefonte and surrounding community should be back of the agricultural improvement program as carried on by the farmers.

"Bellefonte Lime" is known the world over. We have one of the most beautiful springs of the country which is also known for and wide, but what do the people of Bellefonte do to advertise these facts any more than let nature take its course? The speaker brought out the economic importance of testing cattle for tuberculosis. This is important not only to the farmers of the community but just as much to the residents of Bellefonte who are the consumers. Dr. Nixon stated that as business and professional men are dependent largely on the farmer, the latter's farm is the factory and his product one that all are interested in. It is time all co-operate in helping to solve the problems of the community.

The meeting was conducted by the agricultural committee, which is made up of R. C. Blaney, C. R. Beatty and J. B. Payne.

OPENING OF TROUT SEASON.

Few Large Catches Reported On Opening Day of Season.

Very few large catches of the wily beauties were reported on Wednesday, the opening day of the trout season. Although the day dawned clear and warm, and most streams in the county were clear enough for fly fishing, few of the local anglers and fewer of the out of town fishermen reported record breaking catches.

Hugh Wagner, fishing in upper Spring creek, captured the largest prize of the day, a trout slighly over 25 inches in length. Frank Kern, fishing nearby Curtin, caught one 21 inches long, and Robert Valentine one 18 inches. The largest catch in numbers was reported by Frank Crawford who had 19 of the speckled beauties, caught in Sinking Creek. His son, Francis, had 12. Frank Davis, local taxi man, caught 8 in Logan Branch, the largest of which was 12 inches long. William Winton caught 10.

The First National's Statement.

On another page of this issue we publish a condensed statement of our condition at the close of business on April 5th. We are proud of the loyalty of our depositors. It is something we highly highly appreciate. Many of them have been with us for a generation, a few almost a half century.

This speaks well for us both. It shows stability and character on their part. It shows proper treatment and efficient service on our part. Thoughtful, worthwhile people carefully select their bank. An institution that shows a surplus of more than double its capital; that shows deposits of more than a million and three quarters, and total resources of almost two and one half millions, has great elements of strength and security.

The number of people who realize this is shown in our large list of depositors, a list that is constantly growing.

Boy Confessed to Arson.

Dalbert Eyer, 15 years old, of Mt. Zion, Clinton County, confessed following his arrest that he had set fire to a forest that resulted in 600 acres on Shaw mountain being swept by flames. The boy was arrested by State Game Protector Ross and was held in $500 bail for Court. He is suspected of causing two other fires last fall.

Run Down by Local Man.

Paul, 6 year old son of David Long, of Tyrone, was run down and perhaps seriously injured last Saturday, by a Chevrolet car driven by Russell Stickler, of Bellefonte. Mr. Stickler was accompanied by a salesman, who was teaching him to drive the car. Both assert that the car was moving at a low rate of speed and was instantly stopped. Stickler is a son of James Sickler, of Bellefonte, and at present is employed as a P. R. R. clerk at Tyrone.

CENTRE CO. HOSPITAL SLASHED BY GOVERNOR

Pinchot Reduces Appropriation From $13,000 to $10,000

MONEY BADLY NEEDED

Governor Pinchot last Saturday slashed the Centre County hospital appropriation from $13,000 to $10,000. Notwithstanding the greatly increased needs of the hospital, the Governor has allowed it only what it received two years ago.

The Legislature approved the $13,000 item, which everybody appreciated was much below what is actually needed, but the Governor would not allow it and cut off $3000. A few hospitals in communities whose representatives in the Legislature were strongly partisan in supporting Governor Pinchot's political policies were not reduced a penny. Included in this group are the Coatesville hospital, the Mercy hospital at Altoona and the Germantown hospital in Philadelphia.

The smaller hospitals scattered over the State, which have little or no opportunity for endowments from rich men, are the ones cut the hardest by the Governor. The big newspapers in Philadelphia recently warned the Governor that he would ruin himself, politically and otherwise, if he should veto a $1,000,000 appropriation for the fair and exposition to be held in that city next year. The Governor had previously intimated that he would veto the bill because of lack of funds. Presumably, the hospitals have been made to suffer by the Governor as a means to enable him to please the Philadelphia newspapers by allowing the $1,000,000 for the fair and exposition celebration.

OMNIBUS BILL PASSED

State Will Take Over 15 Miles of Centre County Roads

The bill known as the "Omnibus Road Bill," recently was passed by the State Legislature and last week signed by Governor Pinchot. As the bill stands now, 15 miles of county and townships roads in Centre county will be taken over by the State. One road taken over is the township road from State College to Waddle, a distance of 5 miles. Another, likewise a township road, is from Port Matilda to Stormstown, a distance of 3 miles. The only county road taken over is that from Sandy Ridge to Philipsburg, a distance of 7 miles.

It is understood the roads will be taken over by the State Highway department on or about June 1st. No changes will be made for the present in the type of road although the State will probably widen some of them in certain spots, as well as look after their upkeep and maintenance. The project will be financed partially by the tax on gasoline, amounting to 2 cents per gallon, and partially by funds in the State treasury which heretofore have been used in allotments to counties paying 50% of the cost of new roads. Centre county has never availed itself of this fund and has annually foregone drawing its allotment, except for one piece of road nearby State College. On Monday of this week the State Highway department set its official stamp of approval on the contract for the new highway over Nittany mountain, which calls for 11,379 feet of road and which was awarded to Reitz Brothers, of Sunbury, whose bid was $121,656. Work on this road will probably be started immediately.

Double Wedding.

A very pretty double wedding was performed on Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage of the Evangelical church by the Rev. Reed O. Steely. The couples were Robert W. Hilliard and Miss Ione Corman and Lee A. Reed and Miss Miriam Eckley, all of Bellefonte. Both of the young men are employed at the American Lime & Stone company plant. After a short wedding trip they will return to Bellefonte where they will make their future home. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Ruth Poorman.

Elks Install Officers

Monday evening was a gala occasion at the local Elks home, the recently elected officers being installed with appropriate ceremony. Past District Deputy, Howard R. Davis, of Williamsport, accompanied by William V. Walker, J. S. Smith, and A. G. Plankenhorn, were in charge of the installation. The following were installed in office: Exalted Ruler, W. W. Gherrity. Leading Knight, Charles Schow. Esteemed Lecturing Knight, John G. Love. Esteemed Knight, Roy Williams.

BROOMS SHOULD NOT TOUCH CLOSET FLOORS

Proper Manner for Hanging Brooms.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Time and bother are saved if the cleaning tools and materials are kept together in a convenient place, preferably a special closet located where it can be quickly reached from all over the house. If possible, it is well to have on each floor a supply of some of the things most constantly used. As far as possible, cleaning tools should be put away clean and ready for use.

Brooms, brushes and mops should be hung by strings or screw eyes fastened to the handles so that the weight does not rest on the straws, bristles or strings. Another very good arrangement for keeping brooms and mops off the floor is shown in the illustration. The picture was taken by the United States Department of Agriculture at a Virginia farm house, and shows one of the details of a kitchen improved at the suggestion of the extension agent. The back porch or entry is a good place in many homes for keeping these tools together, and at the same time out of the way and as far as possible from where food preparation is going on.

Carpet sweepers also should be turned so that the weight does not come on the brushes. The hair and lint which accumulate in brushes, especially in carpet sweepers, may be taken out with an old buttonhook, a coarse comb or old scissors. Corn brooms may be washed in hot soapsuds, but care must be taken not to let the water rust the wires which hold the straws to the handle.

Bristle brushes may be washed with lukewarm water and a little ammonia (three teaspoonfuls dilute ammonia to the quart) or borax (one teaspoonful to the quart) and then rinsed in clear water. Water is likely to injure the back of a brush and to loosen the cement by which the bristles are held in place in the less expensive makes. The brush should, therefore, not be covered with water, but should be washed by sousing the bristles back and forth in shallow water; it should be dried with the bristles down or with the weight resting on the side of the brush. The drying should be done quickly, but not in an intense heat. Drying in sunshine whitens light bristles. The weighted bristle brush used in polishing floors should be washed occasionally to prevent the accumulation of dirt and wax from darkening the wood.

Mops may be washed in hot suds and rinsed in clear, hot water; they should be quickly dried. Dry mops may be oiled by pouring a few drops of light lubricating oil or any good floor oil into an old dish or a tin box and setting the mop on this for a day or two; or the mop may be sprinkled with a little oil and allowed to stand until the oil spreads through the strings.

CHILDREN REQUIRE PROPER NUTRITION

Much Depends on Mother's Knowledge of Food.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Children must have the right food in order to develop strong bodies. The undernourished child carries a heavy handicap through life. He cannot do as much physically as other children of his age, he tires easily, is more likely to "catch" colds and other diseases, and is inclined to be more sluggish mentally than the properly nourished child.

Good nutrition is not a matter of large expenditure for food; it depends on the mother's knowing what is the right food for her children at different ages, and on her ability to train the children to like and eat what is good for them. Undernourished children are found in the homes of the well-to-do, and well-nourished children in families with very small incomes; the difference is due to knowledge on the part of the mother, and to careful attention at all times to the development of each child.

Every mother can help to give her children a fair start in life by watching them closely for signs of good and poor nutrition, followed by efforts to correct any indications of undernourishment. If her child has firm rosy flesh, bright sparkling eyes, strong white teeth, straight sturdy legs, straight back and flat shoulder blades, full rounded chest, and if his body is erect, strong and well-developed, the chances are that he is well-nourished. He should also have a healthy appetite and appear happy, keen and energetic.

If, however, her child shows signs of poor bodily development, such as a stooped back and body generally, "winged" shoulder blades, flat narrow chest, skinny and underdeveloped frame, bow legs or knock knees, pale flabby flesh, dull dark-circled eyes, or decayed uneven teeth, he is undoubtedly undernourished, and the mother should take steps to learn exactly how he should be fed to correct these conditions. Such a child is often nervous and irritable, listless, easily tired, and backward in school. Sometimes he is "finicky" and fussy about food.

It is not likely that any one child will show all the signs of poor nutrition at once. One or more of these signs is sufficient indication to the wise mother that she ought to learn all she can about foods her children need, and take steps to correct the condition she has noticed. Farmers' Bulletin 717 of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, gives helpful information to any mother on the best foods for children, and in the case of a noticeably undernourished child, a physician should be consulted.

Making Fishballs With White Cornmeal Mush

The United States Department of Agriculture suggests the possibility of substituting white cornmeal mush for potato in making fishballs. When made by the following recipe the result compares favorably with those made with potato. They are prepared more easily and quickly.

Cornmeal Fishballs.

2 cupfuls cold white cornmeal mush	1 egg
1 cupful shredded codfish	1 tablespoonful butter

Pick over the codfish and soak it to remove salt, if necessary. Combine the ingredients and drop by spoonfuls into hot fat. Drain on porous paper. The mush must be as dry as possible.

This makes 12 fishballs.

Rice Fritters

3 cupfuls rye flour.	6 tablespoonfuls sugar.
6 teaspoonfuls baking powder.	¼ cupful evaporated milk.
1½ cupfuls boiled rice.	⅓ cupful water.
1 teaspoonful salt.	3 eggs, beaten.

Mix in order given; drop by spoonfuls into deep, hot fat; brown and drain. Dust with powdered sugar and serve with grape or apple jelly.

The Stolen Diamonds

By M. and R. M. TERRELL

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

SOLLIE SOBEL was in no mood for his customary good humor. The occasion demanded a grim handling and Sollie, with a sigh, screwed up his courage—and his anger—to meet the situation at least half way.

"Miss O'Day," he called out into the shop.

"What is it, Mr. Sobel?"

"Katie—er, Miss O'Day," he began, once she was in his little cubby-hole of an office at the rear of the shop; "sit down, please."

She did, wonderingly.

"Miss O'Day, you still chew gum, don't you?" he asked, his voice lowered.

"I do, Mr. Sobel," she mimicked. "Want a stick? Say, it wasn't you that took—"

"Ain't these your sleeve guards?" Sollie interrupted, plainly ill at ease.

Miss O'Day, now realizing the serious drift of the conversation, took the pair of small sateen guards and looked at them closely.

"Sure. My old pair. Why?"

"Katie," he started to explain, "we're alone. Rubin's lunching. Listen: for months small diamonds have been disappearing mysterious like from my pouches and trays."

"Well, Mr. Sobel?" she inquired icily.

"See here, Katie, I—you—for all the diamonds in the world, real ones, y'understand me, girlie, I wouldn't—I couldn't—I shouldn't—"

"Mr. Sobel, I've been with you several years. You ought to know me by this time—"

"But, Katie, listen; I find a piece of chewing gum with a small diamond stuck in it, all wrapped up in these sleeve things and stuffed away in your corner of that coat closet there!"

Katie sputtered with anger, then she sobbed with humiliation. Sollie tried to get in a word; what chance have the Jewish with the Irish? Katie wound up by hurriedly rushing out of the shop.

Sollie had better sense than to follow Katie down the street. She'd come back; she'd have to come back, Sollie suddenly realized. Love had found a pair of glasses at last!

Sollie went over to his safe, opened it and lost himself in thought over the mystery of the diamonds. It was a fortuitous moment for the passing by of one "Flicker" Cuffins, a recent guest of the state. Mr. Cuffins, let out of the penitentiary, was always good for three days of grace. It was just as this rumination of Flicker's philosophic mind that his eye carelessly took in Sollie Sobel's jewelry store and, er, loan shop. The proprietor was alone, his back turned and lost in thought. The safe was open!

Whereupon Sollie received a tap upon the bean and Flicker, a second later, had several diamond pouches. The jeweler, who was unconscious, was quickly bound and gagged and shoved into the recess back of the safe.

Katie O'Day slipped into the store a few minutes later, so noiselessly that she caught Rubin Gunsberger, the watch repair man, off guard. He quickly shoved his hands behind his back.

"Save your tricks, Mr. Gunsburger," Katie cried out. "I'm wise to you now. Put those sleeve guards down and that wad of chewing gum! Sure it's your stinginess that gave you away to me. You know a real diamond when you get your hands on one, Rubin! I've been walking over in the park and thinking things out. Say, why didn't you spend a nickel and buy your own gum?"

"Gwan! You're crazy!"

"Like a flock of foxes, uh-huh. You tight-wad, you stole gum out of my vanity box. You chewed that gum and painted it and wadded a little of it in the folds of each tray corner, didn't you? You dirty hound, you!"

Rubin's face was guilt enough.

"And then, when you thought your game was out, you had to pin your dirty work on me! Why, you garbage can of a man, you king skunk, you—"

Gunsburger ran true to form.

"D—n Sol!" he whined. "Paying starvation wages!"

Katie, her suspicions fully aroused, rushed to the safe and peered in.

"So you took all the diamonds?" she gasped. "Your middle name's going to be Sing Sing!"

It was here that Sollie, bound and gagged behind the safe, managed to attract attention. Katie dragged him out and set him free. Rubin Gunsburger was still staring at the rifled safe when his employer grabbed him by the arm.

"You bum, you!" Sollie exploded. "I heard every word back there! I'll starvation you! Shut up; I'm talking! You get the h—l out of my store or I'll bust open your mainspring! And, get this, Rubin, if you ain't here again in one hour with all those chewing gum diamonds, with 7 per cent interest from the time you stole each one, I'll catch you myself for the police. Seven per cent a month, y'understand. Git!"

And Rubin got!

"Don't cry, Katie!" cooed her boss. "I ain't lost nothing! The gink what rapped me over the head helped himself to phony diamonds. Wait, wait, don't go, Katie O'Day. Maybe I can't speak Irish, Macushla, but, oi yoi! I bet I can love in it! Katie, if you don't care what the priest says, and I don't care figs about the rabbi; marry me and my shop, dearie!"

And Katie did!

Pimples

BLOOD impurities are pumped by the heart into the face. That is what causes that grainy appearance, that muddiness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that impossible "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify! The foundation for a beautiful skin simply is not there, and no face treatment can give it to you. But increase your red-blood-cells, — and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, the complexion becomes Venus-like and immaculate! Try it. It will do it every time. S. S. GAY JUVENILE SWEATERS; TUNIC MODES FROM PARIS

WHEN mother slips the wee little folks' arms into sweater sleeves, no doubt she is thinking "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure"—which sounds very serious and prosaic until one views the sweaters which are designed for tots this season. Then prose becomes poetry, for they are having a time of glorified color in juvenile sweaterdom this season. Of course if one insists on browns and tans, they are there for the choosing, but what's the use in selecting a dull-toned sweater for little daughter when there are such lovely pinky beiges to be had in the knitted outerwear sections, or bennas with a decided rose tinge, cockscomb red and hosts of charming blues?

As to color combinations, the model in the picture is typical of the brilliant trend. This attractive sweater is as suitable for the small boy as it is for his sister. It is knitted in apple-green wool with front in alternating stripes of orange and green. This little sweater happens to be of the button-up type but slipovers are also shown in plentiful number.

Very new and appealing to children are knitted coatees with collars and cuffs of fringed wool. Knitted rayon tunic suits for youngsters have knickers to match. Following the ensemble idea, novelty brushed wool caps are designed to match children's cardigans, jerseys and brushed wool knicker suits. In these, also color plays a pleasing part in such combinations as saxe, fawn and white; putty, green and white; applegreen and fawn; orange and yellow.

Fanciful touches on sweaters and knitted tunics for children stress tassels of the wool, with lacings up the front. Novelty sweater types have scalloped collars, and hemline, the same bound with plain knit rayon. The pearl buckle which clasps the knitted belt on the sweater in the picture adds a decorative note in many instances.

Little girls' dresses knitted in shell stitch with a flared ruffle below the hipline are designed in effective pastel colorings.

Happy the woman of fashion who adds a French blouse or two to her spring and summer collection. That artful baffling simplicity which is a peculiar gift of the French couturier is bespoken to a degree of extreme chic in each of the blouses portrayed. The model to the left is a Callot inspiration. There is the inimitable artistry of genius in its every detail. Stone gray georgette is the selected medium. Especially is the yoke unique in that it drops sufficiently to suggest a shallow decollette, bringing itself back to practical aspect by means of a band of the fabric which defines a conservative neckline. Then, too, the draped hemline, confined at one side under a tasseled medallion motif, suggests an entirely new line of thought.

Many points of interest are accentuated by Jeanne Lanvin in the companion blouse, in that the much heralded epaulet shoulders are featured, also the modish V-neck and particularly the slashed tabs which, while they afford escape from the tyranny of an all-too-narrowness, score a double victory in that they suggest the popular flare tendency. A discreet use of embroidery is evidenced on shoulder and tabs of this tunic blouse.

Showing Yoke and Epaulet Shoulders.

This decorative note is oft repeated on the import blouse. Crepe de chine and georgette serve as background for fine needlework in colored yarns.

Perhaps the outstanding feature in the newer blouses is their extreme length. Sometimes only a few inches of the slip shows below. Jabots, flares, and buttons, also long silken neckties, are tunic headlights.

Flower-patterned prints are favored for the informal tunic, having cascades of white georgette or rippling jabots.

Striped tub silk is recommended for the practical blouse, especially to be worn with the smart cloth tailleur.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

PUBLIC GENEROUS IN GIVING TO FUND

Marked success is being met with in the public appeal for the American Legion $5,000,000 endowment fund for the disabled and the orphans of the World war. Legionnaires and the general public are giving generously of time, effort and money to the fund.

Many posts are raising their local quotas for the fund in a day or two of effort. At Corydon, Ind., Commander C. A. Keller and his post service officer raised the quota of $350 in two afternoons by their own efforts. Evansville, Ind., home of State Chairman Marcus S. Sonntag, raised nearly its entire quota of more than $15,000 in three days.

Indiana was the first state to make the public appeal. The mine disaster at Sullivan, Ind., in which 51 men lost their lives shortly before the campaign, drove close home to the people of that state the need of such work for the disabled and the orphans as the Legion is doing and as the fund is intended to maintain. Kentucky was the second state to start the campaign, following a three-night radio barrage.

Westfield, Ind., resorted to an interesting device in raising its quota of $250. A Legionnaire remembered that there were precisely 250 pockets in the machine gun belts used by the Germans in the war. The belt was placed conspicuously in a store window. As contributions came in, the pockets were stuffed with dollar bills. The quota was quickly completed.

Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois was the first person to make a large individual contribution to the fund. Lieut. Wayland Brooks, D. S. C., and Michael J. Cullen, D. S. C., presented the appeal for the endowment to the senator. They suggested that he contribute $2,000. He handed them a check for $5,000. Brooks and Cullen are members of the Combat Medal Men's association of Chicago, which was the first organization in Illinois to contribute.

A Chicago newspaper feature column recently ran this:

"'I believe,' says the 'I Believe' card of the American Legion in its drive for a $5,000,000 endowment fund, 'that the orphan children of those who made the supreme sacrifice for America are entitled to the same chance in life which they would have received had not their fathers given their lives to the nation.' That's pretty easy to believe. But believing isn't enough. We want to do something besides just believing. Therefore—now watch us closely, American Legion—we do here and now gedunk $100 into said endowment fund. Splash!"

Tennessee's first contribution came from Canada. It was a check for $50 from Phillip N. Libby of Lemiskaming, Province of Quebec. Libby is a former member of Hammond post, Kingsport, Tenn.

Many governors and former governors are interesting themselves actively in the endowment movement in their respective states. Among the honorary chairmen chosen are: Gov. Austin Peay, Tennessee; Gov. Henry L. Fuqua, Louisiana; former Gov. Thomas C. McRae, Arkansas; Gov. W. W. Brandon, Alabama; Gov. Clifford M. Walker, Georgia, joint honorary chairman with Chancellor David C. Barrow, University of Georgia. Among the active chairmen are: Gov. E. W. Morgan, West Virginia; former Gov. Thomas E. Kilby, Arkansas; former Gov. Hugh M. Dorsey, Georgia.

Open Coffin to Take Buddy's Finger Prints

A coffin was opened recently at Pueblo, Colo., just as the grave yawned to receive it, to get the finger prints of a former service man to accompany his application for adjusted compensation. Friends of John McNichol, of Durango, Colo., were grouped about the grave when an automobile drove up and a group of American Legion men stepped from it. They made known their request, which was complied with.

During his last hours McNichol's friends made out his application papers for compensation. He was so weak that he could only affix a scrawled mark to the papers in the presence of witnesses. At the last minute it was discovered that his finger prints had not been obtained and the posthumous finger prints were taken.

To Bar Sectionalism in Teaching History

At a recent conference of the national executive committee of the American Legion, the committee endorsed the movement for the publication of a popular history of the United States, which will be non-partisan and non-sectarian and will have the backing of more than 300 history experts. The editor is Charles F. Horne of New York university, late of the A. E. F. The purpose is to do away with sectionalism in the teaching of history. Legionnaires point out that today there are hundreds of histories, and children in different sections of the country are being taught history colored by local prejudice, the versions exactly contradicting each other.

Boy Carries Three From Flaming House

Conneaut, Ohio.—Leroy Crandall, nine, of East Conneaut, was hailed as a hero.

When his mother, Mrs. B. H. Crandall, came to the city, she left Leroy in charge of the home and of his sister, Viola, six, and his twin brothers, Lloyd and Floyd, three.

Upon reaching here, Mrs. Crandall telephoned Leroy and was told the children are "having lots of fun." Next Mrs. Crandall heard a scream.

"The whole kitchen is on fire," came next as the receiver dropped from Leroy's hand.

Rushing to her home in an automobile, Mrs. Crandall found that Leroy had carried the younger children to safety, pulled down and trampled clothing which caught fire behind a kitchen stove and was throwing water on the blazing wood box.

"I was scared but I wanted to help all I could," the boy said.

YOUTH FLYING KITE IS KILLED BY WIRE

Burned to Death When It Crosses Electric Line.

Tampa, Fla.—His efforts to produce a kite superior to that of any of his playmates cost the life of Benjamin Guy Little, eleven years old.

Benny appeared before his playmates one morning with a kite which he told them was the "last word" in kite making. To his kite, Benny had attached a copper wire.

As Benny's kite mounted toward the clouds about noon a strong puff of wind carried the kite over some wires. The wire on Benny's kite touched a high-tension electric wire. One flash, and Benny's clothing was ablaze, the grass around him was burning and Benny's mates were fleeing. His body was badly burned. He was rushed to a hospital, but efforts to save his life were futile.

Dies of Starvation as Father Seeks Work

New York.—Firmo Cellegrino, a blacksmith out of work since Christmas, visited the Fifth street police station recently on an unusual errand. He asked the desk sergeant if the city would not provide free burial for George, one of the Cellegrino twins, three days old. George died at Bellevue, where physicians said death was due to the mother having been undernourished.

Cellegrino was perplexed. It was the other twin, Telio, who had been ill. The twins were born prematurely. When Telio was ailing they took both babies to the hospital. The father went to inquire for Telio and was informed that he was still ailing and that George had died.

What makes the case still more difficult for Cellegrino is that there is another baby, Giuseppe, nine months old, at home and nothing in the cupboard. Mrs. Georgiana Cellegrino, the mother, is in bed, suffering from lack of food and grief over the death of little George.

Meanwhile there is the burial to attend to. Telio may die any moment. Giuseppe hasn't any food. Cellegrino is a willing worker, and if there is a job available says he would appreciate the opportunity to earn enough for those surviving and to bury George.

Mad Tiger Kills Trainer; Killed in Audience Leap

Manila.—Crashing through the steel bars that separated it from the girl performer who was putting the animal through its tricks, a circus tiger at a Manila carnival show instantly killed the young woman.

A quick-minded Filipino detective in the audience shot and killed the blood-maddened jungle beast, just as it was leaping from the stage on which it had ended the girl's life into the midst of the crowded seats encircling the ringside.

So quickly did the killing occur that circus employees had no opportunity to come to the girl's rescue.

The shot felled the tiger as it hurtled through the air toward the audience and quelled the panic which had started.

Grabs Rope in Midair After Fall Out of Window

Lawton, Okla.—B. F. Moore, a carpenter working on the new hospital building at Fort Sill, Okla., qualified as a movie stunt performer. While he was working on the second story of the building he lost his balance and fell backward out of a window. As he fell he grasped a rope which ran through a pulley at the top of the building. The other end of the rope struck him in the face as he descended. He was also successful in grabbing the loose rope, retarding his rapid descent, stopping just as his feet reached the ground. Aside from minor injuries to his face he was unhurt.

Lost With Barge

Boston.—Captain Mosher of Providence, R. I., his sixteen-year-old daughter, and a crew of three men were lost when the coal barge James M. Hudson, Norfolk for Boston, foundered off Boston Light recently.

New War Weapon

The successful development of a new powder for use in small arms has been announced by the War department. It is smokeless, flashless and impervious to moisture, at the same time possessing all the driving power of the type now in use. Without revealing the position of the guns the new powder will permit night firing.

PASTURE INCREASES PORK

Demonstrations Show Hogs Require Much Less Grain.

Successful hog men in Centre county have found that it pays to have pastures in profitable pork production. They are again planning on having good pastures for their 1925 crops of hogs.

Pasture demonstration work carried on by the Agricultural Extension department of the Penna. State College bears out the results obtained in this county. These demonstrations staged in all sections of the state indicate that pigs on pasture require 133 pounds less feed to produce 100 pounds gain than is required by pigs fed in dry lots.

Again pasture experiments carried on by tha U. S. Department of Agriculture in all sections of the county show that an acre of good alfalfa or sweet clover will save 1149 pounds of corn and 468 pounds of tankage as compared to feeding in the dry lot. At the present price of feed this means a net money value of $45 from an acre of such pasture. Some good forage crops for Penna. conditions are alfalfa, clover, and dwarf essex rape. In the cooler sections oats and Canada field peas make a good early pasture.

OVER THE COUNTY

The Methodist congregation of Howard has recently decided to erect a modern Sunday school room in the rear of the present building, and voted to raise $10.000 for the purpose.

Edward, son of Ed. Lucas, of Fairview, had the misfortune to fall from the school bus recently, breaking his leg. He was taken to the Centre county hospital. where he is now convalescing as rapidly as could be expected.

At a meeting of the Encampment and Fair committee of the Centre county grange recently, it was voted to erect a large new building for exhibition purposes. Plans and programs for the coming annual encampment in September were also discussed.

One of the largest lodge gatherings in central Pennsylvania was held at Centre Hall last week, when a large class of candidates were initiated into the I. O. O. F. at that place. More than eighty visitors representing lodges from every camp in the county were present.

John A. Mann and his brother, Wilson Mann met with an accident last Friday Friday that resulted in the former having two ribs broken and a badly damaged buggy. They were enroute to their home from Howard when the horse which they were driving became frightened at a tractor, and ran past it, colliding with a telephone pole.

A large team of horses owned by R. F. Glenn, of Waddle driven by a man by the name of Stiver, slipped on a steep hill nearby that place, and rolled back down the hill, fortunately escaping injury. The wagon was loaded with baled straw and just as the team reached the top of the hill, the grade became too steep and the road too slippery. The wagon brought up against a large boulder, which effectually checked its descent.

The Miller construction company, which secured the contract to build the new concrete highway between Snow Shoe Intersection and Port Matilda, is finding some difficulty in getting room to store the supplies and facilities for unloading the same. The more far seeing of the residents of Bald Eagle valley are deploring the lack of public spiritedness in those citizens who seem to be wilfully hampering the construction company.

On Friday of last week, the square at Millheim was the scene of another auto accident. John P. Condo, of Aaronsburg, driving a Chevrolet touring car arrived at the street intersection at the same time as Paul Meyer, who was ensconced in the cab of a large truck. Both cars were moving at a fair rate of speed and both attempted to turn in the same direction at once. Mr. Condo, in an effort to avoid striking the truck, crashed headon into a telephone pole, practically demolishing his car. He was somewhat cut about the face and head by flying pieces of glass.

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College.

HOLD WEEK FOR SAWYERS—Sawmill week will be held at Pennsylvania State College, April 20 to 25, practical instruction will be given by experienced men in sawing lumber, setting up the mill, filing and caring for circular and crosscut saws, and estimating timber. There will also be a program of helpful talks. The course is free to all who wish to attend for one or more days, or for the whole week.

USE NURSE CROP—Where alfalfa is to be sown in the spring it is likely to be choked by weeds unless sown with a nurse crop. It may be sown in the spring on wheat or rye with good success. Where wheat is not grown, alfalfa may be sown with oats with equal success.

KEEP PYROTOL DRY—Pyrotol should not be allowed to come in contact with moisture for more than an hour in the cartridge form before being exploded. If the sticks are cut they should not be allowed to absorb any moisture at all.

PICK FLOWERS FOR GROUNDS—Observe flowers that are now in bloom and list them as sources for planting material to be set out around the home.

ERECT WREN HOUSES—Folks who like to have wrens around the home grounds usually put the wren houses up early. While it is true that the early bird gets the worm, the house erected early gets the wren.

ARE GARDEN TOOLS READY—Getting the garden tools in shape for use is a good indoor job for rainy days. Sharpening the dull ones, repairing the broken ones, and sending for new ones may well be done before the day arrives when they are needed.

World Tour Aviators at State.

Lieutenants Leigh Wade and Leslie P. Arnold, two of the six Army fliers who made the successful flight around the world, are to tell of their historic flight Thursday, April 30, at State College under the auspices of the college. They will probably appear in the evening in the college auditorium, and arrangements are being made for an overflow meeting if it is found necessary. The famous fliers will bring four reels of motion pictures taken for the War Department, showing their stops enroute. Tentative plans call for the talk to start at 7:30 in the auditorium with the overflow meeting in the Old Chapel starting about 8 o'clock.

CREAM TEST VARIATIONS.

Results Cause Dissatifaction Among Centre County Patrons.

Variations in cream tests from one month to the next is a matter that causes much discussion and often much dissatisfaction among creamery patrons in Centre County.

The farmer who sells cream is sometimes surprised at the variation in the test reported by the creamery. In the early part of the summer the tests tend downward. The farmer should not assume that a variation in the tests means either carelessness or dishonesty on the part of the creamery buyer.

First of all the richness of the cream varies with the richness of the milk. In early spring and summer there are more fresh cows which results in a lower testing milk, and as a result of this the cream goes down in proportion. A herd of cows may produce milk averaging 4 percent in the fall and in the early spring and summer the average will run as low as 3-5 per cent. This much difference in the richness of the milk will cause a variation of five to eight percent in the cream test.

The most important cause for variation is the speed of the separator. The faster the separator is run the larger the proportion of skim milk and the smaller the proportion for cream. Consequently the high speed yields a richer cream. If a machine that is supposed to be turned 60 revolutions a minute is reduced to 40 the cream will be considerable lower in test.

Another important cause of variation in cream tests and some times the most important, is the amount of water or skim milk used in flushing out the bowl. The difference of a pint used will make noticeable difference in the test of the cream. A difference in the temperature of the milk separated will also have some effect. Some separators are more sensitive to temperature than others. With some a difference of 20 degrees in the temperature of the milk when separated will make a difference of several percent in the test without affecting the thoroughness of the separation to any marked extent. It should be understood that those variations occur not as a result of more or less loss of fat in the skim milk but as a result of a larger proportion being taken out in the form of cream.

TIES AND BUILDING BURN.

Destructive Fire at Queens Run Fire Brick Company.

Ten thousand or more oak ties, a large blacksmith shop, a stable, car barn and half a dozen clay cars, were destroyed by fire at Queens Run on last Thursday evening. The wiping out of the entire community was prevented by the timely arrival of a pumper from Lock Haven, in response to a call from officials of the P. R. R. company.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have started from a safety strip fire which was being burned along the P. R. R. tracks by company workmen. The ties burned were mostly for narrow gauge roads and were the property of several lumber companies. They were not insured. The buildings and cars, owned by the Queens Run Fire Brick company were partially covered by insurance. P. R. R. employes and workmen from the brick plant worked heroically for over three hours, assisting the firemen in checking the blaze.

Furniture in Truck Burned.

Fire one night last week destroyed a truck load of furniture owned by Mrs. H. H. Barton, which was in transit from Pleasant View, near Mifflin, to Washington, when a lantern exploded gasoline fumes while the van was refilling its tank. Following the death of her husband, Mrs. Barton decided to move to Washington, and left Pleasant View with her household goods loaded on a ten-ton truck. When they arrived at Gettysburg the driver of the truck decided to refill his gasoline tank and the explosion occurred. The blaze gained such headway before firemen arrived that only several pieces were saved.

Water Looked On as Cureall by Gypsies

Konrad Bercovici, the magazine writer, who was born a gypsy, in writing in Hygeia of the habits of gypsy tribes, comments as follows on their use of water as a preventive of disease.

"The gypsy believes in the curative qualities of water. When a child is born it is immediately immersed in running water. When some one is ill he is given water—cold water, hot water, water all the time; water against headaches, as a cure for rheumatism and all old age complaints. When a man is over sixty they say: 'He is drinking old age water.'

"They use water to cure ills of horses and cattle and sheep. Even their incantations for happiness, their love potions and hate potions are all water. Naturally a deal of hokum goes with it. Water is their religion, their witchcraft. Many a gypsy has told me the reason gypsies move from one place to another is because they are going to better and better waters—to swiftly running waters.

"The gypsies use no drugs of any kind; not even herbs, dried or boiled. Next to water, their other remedy is fat—lard, grease and butter. They apply that to wounds after washing them. Water, grease and sunshine begins the gypsies' prayer to Tchiuma, the mother of the world."

Two Theories as to Origin of "Gazette"

There are two theories as to the origin of "gazette." It seems that the first newspaper so called was published at Venice in the Sixteenth century. According to one theory, the paper was issued at Venice by the government and came out in manuscript once a month during the war of 1563 between the Venetians and the Turks. The paper was read publicly in certain places and the fee charged for hearing it read was one "gazetta," which was a small Venetian coin worth a fraction of a cent. Hence the paper came to be called the "gazetta" and finally the "gazette." If this derivation is correct it is parallel to that of "jitney" as applied to a bus which carries passengers for a "jitney," or a nickel. According to the other theory, "gazette" as applied to the Venetian paper is derived from "gazza," a magpie. Hence it might have been a fitting name for a newspaper.—Pathfinder.

Tracts and Tracks

Uncle Bill Walker, who lived at the foot of Great Smoky, became an easy convert to the propaganda of Mormon missionaries. His brother, Sammie, an old magistrate of considerable means and great influence in the coves of the Smokies, was eagerly sought after as a "prospect."

Squire Sammie was sitting on his front porch one afternoon when two elders of the new faith came up from the road.

"Brother Walker," one of them began courteously, "we have come to tell you about the Church of the Latter-Day Saints, and we should like to leave some tracts for you to look over."

"That's all right, gentlemen," the old mountaineer replied without even taking his pipe from his mouth. "Younuns is welcome to leave all the tracks you want to, just so's the toes of 'em is p'intin' t'ward yan gate!"—Everybody's Magazine.

By Intention

When a Scotchman has no argument at his tongue's end to defend his own line of conduct which another may have criticized, it may safely be inferred that his ancestry has a strain from some other nation.

A man who has an estate in Scotland took his new plowman to task for the wavering furrows which were the result of his work.

"Your drills are not nearly as straight as those Angus made," he said severely. "He would not have left such a glebe as this."

"Angus didna ken his work," said Tammas calmly, contemplating his employer with an indulgent gaze. "Ye see, when the drills is crookit the sun gets in on all sides, an' 'tis then ye get early 'tatties."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Words Wrongly Spelled

"I have seen lists of the words most often misspelled," said a teacher quoted in the New York Times, "but in my experience the one most frequently sinned against in print is 'gauge.' I have even found it stamped 'guage' on the manufactured article. The next most frequently misspelled? I don't know. But for one infrequently used, 'buoy' certainly ranks high. 'Weird' seems to give some people lots of trouble, and almost everybody on a test will misspell 'deleble,' because better acquainted with its negative, 'indelible,' which has changed its original spelling."

Waldo Turned a Corner

Waldo's teacher had asked him to write a sentence containing the word amphibious, and as Waldo was but twelve, he had some trouble spelling the word, but, after several calls on teacher for aid, evidently got it written to his satisfaction. Then ensued a long period of concentration and wriggling. It was broken when Waldo asked teacher how to spell containing.

At last he laid the results of his labor on the teacher's desk, and this is what she read:

"My teacher has asked me to write a sentence containing the word amphibious."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Famine Has More Than Once Gripped England

The story of famines in England has been a gloomy one from earliest times.

At the beginning of the Eighth century a dearth, which extended to Ireland, drove men to cannibalism.

It was not until the reign of Aethelred the Unready, however, that "such a famine prevailed as no man can remember," from 1005 to 1016.

Those chroniclers who were wont to see bad conditions at their worst, says the National Geographic Magazine, declared that half the population of the larger island perished.

But it must be remembered that much of the mortality of this period was occasioned by the wars between Aethelred and Sweyn the Dane, the latter being forced by the famine to retire from England for a time.

Naturally, the era following the advent of William the Conqueror was one of widespread starvation and pestilence among the English peasantry. During the last 30 years of the Eleventh century, nine were years of dire distress.

So great was the dearth in 1069 that the peasants of the north, unable longer to secure dogs and horses to appease their hunger, sold themselves into slavery in order to be fed by their masters.

All the land between Durham and York lay waste, without inhabitants or people to till the soil for nine years, says Beverly, and another writer accuses the destitute of cannibalism.

Tea Soup

Father William E. Cashin, who has resigned as chaplain of Sing Sing prison after 12 years' service, said at a reception in New York:

"The cooking is one of many things that have improved at Sing Sing. The cooking there in the past was—well, it was like the story.

"This story is about a prison cook who made tea in a kettle and then made soup in the same kettle without first washing it out.

"When the cook discovered his mistake, he said, as he ladled the soup into the prisoners' plates:

"'By the way, fellers, if ye find tea leaves in yer soup ye'll know it's thyme.'"

"Dead Shots" Devoted Much Time to Practice

I had a man with me in Texas and New Mexico—surveying for Santa Fe—who knew a thing or two about drawing a gun, Louis C. Millikin writes in Adventure Magazine.

I have seen him put his hands on his head, have another man throw up a can, draw, hit it with both right and left gun and return guns to scabbard before it had reached the top of the throw about 15 to 20 feet (or at least before it had stopped going up from the hits).

In my estimation at that time he was a marvel with a six-gun and, though I have seen others, I never saw his equal. His name was Jack Mellish.

The reason why gunmen of the "Wild Days" were such experts at the draw and shot, even with the old Frontier Colt, was simply that they spent as much if not more time in practicing the draw and shot as some of our eminent musicians spend practicing their art.

Rosamond

Rosamond was the daughter of Walter de Clifford, Lord Hereford, and was the favorite mistress of Henry II of England. To conceal his amour from his jealous queen, Eleanor, Henry is said to have removed Rosamond to a labyrinth in Woodstock park, where his wife discovered her and obliged her to take poison. Some authors declare that the fair Rosamond died in Goodstow nunnery, near Oxford. She had two sons by Henry, William, surnamed Longsword, and Jeffry, archbishop of York.

Origin of Football

However ancient their origins most of our popular games date back only to the athletic revival of the Nineteenth century. As an instance, football. Not till the foundation of the football association in 1863 and the Rugby Football union in 1871 can the two games we know today be said to have taken legal shape. During the Seventeenth century, probably owing to the Puritan movement, football declined in town and country.

"The Republican's" Cross-Word Puzzle

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

His Favorite Selection

Disc music has been instrumental in giving many families education of a kind that enables them to recognize the classics, and many people who have slight knowledge of compositions or technique are fond of the best selections.

Finger Print Data on 7,000,000 Men

Army Can Locate Any Regular in 20 Minutes.

Washington.—Finger-print identification has been developed by the army to the point of efficiency where its application at times vies with the thrills of detective fiction.

Any unidentified man who has served in the regular army can be located in from ten to twenty minutes, and his full record laid bare. In that short time a searcher finds him among the more than 7,000,000 men who have been in the army since 1906, when the finger-print system was introduced. He may have been one of the 50,328 Smiths, the 40,101 Johnsons, 28,902 Browns, or one of the 27,938 named Williams. All the army needs is his finger print to find his record.

Walter S. Kaye, in charge of the bureau, says the indexing has been worked out so efficiently that even a new clerk, one never before having had knowledge of the system, can begin work as a searcher with little preliminary instruction.

The science of finger-print reading is based on the study of the curious, circling network of all but invisible lines on the ball of the thumb and each finger. Examination of millions of specimens shows that the normal formation is the whorl, or the scroll which winds these lines from the outer edge in a gradually reducing circle to their inner termination at the core of the network. A majority of human beings are marked with this scroll, but there are others whose finger-print lines run in flattened figures or in complications of figures far removed from the simple, easily-read whorls. The first step in identification has to do with determining the broad general division in which the prints under examination are to be sought.

There are but four main groups or classifications of prints, arches, loops, whorls and composites. Each type has its gradational cases. The whorls have 1,024 values or combinations and the loops, arches and composites have each their respective values to simplify segregation for filing and to make them easily located when identifications are sought. The evaluation of prints thus made has overcome all difficulty of dealing with large collections of finger markings, such as are in the army files.

Finger prints, since their adoption in 1906, have exposed frauds, protected innocent men from injustice, kept undesirables of the criminal type out of the service, protected the government from unscrupulous claimants and uncovered the guilty. Many interesting accounts of such instances are contained in official papers of the War department during the last 15 years.

Never a Mistake.

Those who have worked in the identification bureau since its establishment are authority for the statament, that never has a mistake been made. They have made more then 200,000 identifications.

"The finger-print system," Mr. Kaye says, "is superior to any other system so far devised, in that it permits of no error. This may seem a strong statement, but the finger print, when clearly made, allows of no misrepresentation; it is an actual presentation and does not permit the personal equation of error to enter. Other systems allowed errors of measurement and errors in location of marks."

In the more than 70,000,000 digit photographs in the identification bureau's files, Mr. Kaye says, there are no two of them alike. "There is just as much chance of finding two prints alike as there would be in going into the fields and finding two flowers exactly alike."

Red Swears by Emblems: Hammer, Sickle and Cork

Paris.—"I will only consent to be sworn on the symbols of my religion," declared Raffin Dugens, former Communist deputy, when he appeared before the parliamentary committee, which is investigating election campaign funds.

Chairman Mistral said he was afraid he could not oblige the witness with the necessary symbols, but M. Dugens said he was prepared for that. From a portfolio he drew forth a hammer and sickle, the point of the blade guarded by a cork, crossed them on the table, raised his hand and declared in a loud voice:

"I swear, on this emblem of the union of the workers of the city and of the fields, to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." The members of the committee held their sides in laughter.

Dugens, who was recently expelled from the Communist party, first came to public notice as one of the Kienthal pilgrims during the war, going to that Swiss village to meet representatives of the German Socialists. He now is accused by his political opponents of having accepted a check for 5,000 francs toward his expenses in the last elections from an advertising agent.

He readily admitted the fact to the committee, declaring:

"To fight Mistral's gang I would have accepted money from the devil."

SAFES FOR CHURCHES

French World War Total Is 8,501,045

Compilation of Man Power Raised by Republic.

Paris.—The army committee of the last chamber of deputies undertook, in response to a resolution by the chamber to prepare a statement showing the losses in dead and wounded suffered in the great war of all the belligerent nations. The army committee of the present chamber has continued this work.

The first installment of the report, covering the French military effort, has been compiled and appears in a document written by Deputy Louis Marin. As a preliminary to the loss tabulations, it presents a picture of the entire French mobilization effort and the enormous French contribution to allied victory.

Lucien Chassaigne has given in an article in Le Journal a highly interesting summary of the findings. He says:

"In 1914 France had under the colors the classes of 1914, 1913 and 1912, representing 992,905 men—817,000 Europeans, 53,705 native Africans and 52,200 native colonials.

8,501,045 Men Mobilized.

"During the war there were enlisted in the military service (outside the regular classes) 702,500 Europeans, 240,051 Africans and 223,089 colonials. Including the 34 classes subject to service, the total of men mobilized reached 8,501,045.

"The number of officers in the active and supplementary services rose to 90,000.

"From the 1st to the 15th of August, 1914, the mobilization brought 288,000 men from the complementary lists into the active army. In the following ten months the effort continued, and 2,740,000 men were recruited from the old classes, dating back to 1887, and from the classes of 1914 to 1915.

"The picture of the contribution of these classes is a curious one, and proves the robustness of our race. The class of 1887 had 244,000 men living at the time of the original mobilization. Of these, 54,000 served actively during the war. The proportion increased very rapidly. The class of 1897 gave a contribution of 81 per cent. As for the younger men, they served in the proportion of 89 per cent.

"The writer of the report follows step by step the efforts at recuperation (the return of the incapacitated) and the figures pay a striking tribute to our sanitary service. For the years 1916, 1917 and 1918 the proportions of wounded cured and returned to service was 79 per cent. This recuperation procured 650,000 men for the noncombatant arms.

Volunteers Total 229,037.

"Voluntary enlistments reached a total of 229,037, of which 2,480 were made by men more than forty-six years old. The foreign volunteers numbered 29,796, the Italians taking the lead with 7,125.

"Here is an important point. On December 1, 1918, the list of slackers contained only 42,227 names. As to the deserters, 74,393 were caught in the interior or abroad and 7,228 at the front.

"Either at the time when the classes were incorporated or in the course of hostilities, 1,029,881 men were discharged for physical disability.

"The natives mobilized consisted of 173,019 Algerians, 80,339 Tunisians, 40,398 Moroccans, 181,512 Senegalese, 41,355 Malgaches (natives of Madagascar), 48,922 Indo-Chinese and 3,500 Somalis. On November 1, 1918, 2,846,000 men were in the armies, 1,297,000 in the interior, 1,387,000 in factories or in reserve and 25,000 on leave. On the same date 2,619,000 men were on the fighting lines in northern France and 227,000 were in the army of the Orient.

"The distribution of the troops shows the broadening of the scope of the fighting. On May 1, 1915, the infantry comprised 1,526,000 combatants; in April, 1918, 1,036,000, and on October 1, 1918, only 351,000. The combatants in the artillery showed a movement in the opposite direction. In 1915 they numbered 395,000; in 1918, 601,000. As to the air fighters, they increased in the same period from 8,000 to 51,000, while the auto service was expanded from 18,000 to 91,000.

"The number of the noncombatants, by reason of our industrial necessities, increased steadily—from 101,000 in 1915 to 555,000 in 1918."

INDIANS INCLINE TO BUREAU RULE

Feel Their Status More Secure Under Uncle Sam.

Washington.—The little lad who has a weakness for war paint, feathers and Indian tales may take heart at the Indian bureau's announcement that there are still 345,000 of these primeval Americans in the land.

The attention of the Sixty-ninth congress will be called to the fact that, unless the nation's lawmakers make other provisions, the period of government wardship in the five civilized tribes will expire in 1931. There are about 17,000 Indians under federal supervision in the five civilized tribes, and elsewhere in the country the bureau of Indian affairs has 200,000 "restricted" Indians who are supervised.

The Indians themselves, Indian bureau officials say, are anxious to have the restriction extended, as they desire government guardianship to conserve their lands.

Under the June, 1924, law, all native-born Indians are now citizens of the United States. There are 190 tribes, many of them being small groups.

The number of Indian children in schools, the health appropriations by congress, Indian hospitals and the value of farm products raised by those citizens have materially increased in the last decade.

Farming and stock raising have developed appreciably among the Indians, and large sums of money are being spent by the government on irrigation projects on their lands, the Indians being the country's first irrigationists. The Navajo Indians in particular are great sheep raisers, their women being noted weavers of blankets.

WHO'S WHO—and WHEREFORE

Wadsworth Resigns From the Treasury

Eliot Wadsworth of Boston has resigned as assistant secretary of the treasury and has decided to return to private life. He was appointed in March of 1921 by President Harding. He has been the assistant secretary in charge of foreign loans and railroad advances. His miscellaneous activities have included supervision of the public health service and he represented in 1923 the government at Paris for the settlement of the cost of the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine.

Mr. Wadsworth was born in Boston in 1876. He took an A. B. degree at Harvard in 1898, LL. D. at Rochester in 1921 and A. M. at Harvard in 1923. From 1907 to 1916 he was a partner in an electrical engineering firm. Then for three years he was vice chairman of the central committee of the American National Red Cross. He is an overseer of Harvard and chairman of the executive committee of the Harvard endownment fund committee. He is a member of the board of Ellis Memorial and Eldridge House. He was awarded the D. S. M. and was made a commander of the Order of the Crown by Belgium.

Mr. Wadsworth must be nearly, if not quite, a record holder as a club member. Anyway his list of memberships includes these: Boston—Tavern, Engineers, Harvard, Tennis and Racquet, Somerset and Country; New York—Harvard and Racquet and Tennis; Washington—Metropolitan, Cosmos and Chevy Chase.

"Garry" Sargent, Able and Picturesque

John Garibaldi Sargent (portrait herewith), the new attorney general of the United States, is by far the most picturesque figure in the cabinet of President Coolidge. He was born in 1860 in Ludlow, Vt., where he still lives. He is a Tufts college man, A. B. and A. M. He has been attorney general of Vermont. He leaves a large and general practice to become attorney general. His friends—and his opponents—say he is as able as picturesque. He is a close friend of President Coolidge. His appointment, following the sensational contest between the President and the senate over the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, makes him a national figure.

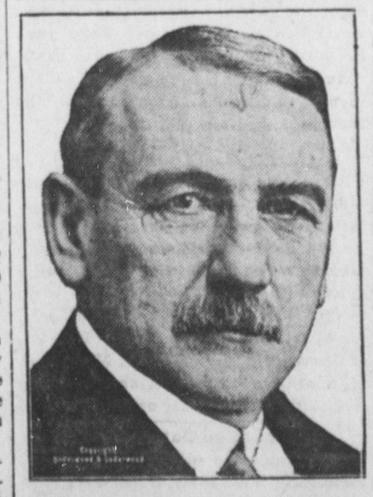
"Garry" Sargent, as all Vermont calls him, is a physical giant, standing four inches over 6 feet and weighing 250 pounds. He collects pipes. He collects clocks and mends them. He is an antiquarian. He is a tinker. He has the biggest office in the state of Vermont and externally the plainest. He reads French and Italian newspapers. He still drives a pair of Morgan horses in a democrat wagon, though he has three automobiles. He's a fisherman and loves to camp out. He's a gorgeous camp cook—the sort that will get up before daylight to start the breakfast right—and no more can be said in praise of any man.

Mrs. Sanders, Wife of Cal's Secretary

Here is an up-to-date portrait of Mrs. Everett Sanders, the wife of the secretary to President Coolidge. They are an interesting couple, she and her husband. The young people met when attending the Indiana State Normal school at Terre Haute. She was then Miss Ella Neal of Jasonville, Ind. In 1903, after graduation, they were married and in 1904 entered Indiana university. In 1907 Sanders began law practice in Terre Haute. Getting into politics, he was elected to congress in 1916 and staid there. Last year he was not a candidate for re-election.

At the National Republican convention in Cleveland Sanders had a narrow escape from being nominated for vice president; his work as head of the national speakers' bureau had given him wide popularity. Now he has taken the place of C. Bascom Slemp. His very first job was to persuade congress not to include him in the salary raise. Terre Haute insists that Sanders knows politics quite as well as does Slemp and that he is just naturally popular with everybody. They expect him to prove a great success in his trying and responsible position.

J. F. Stevens Awarded John Fritz Medal



John Frank Stevens, once chief engineer of the Panama canal, has been awarded the John Fritz gold medal, the highest honor bestowed in the United States by the engineering profession. The award is given him "for great achievements as a civil engineer, particularly in planning and organizing for the construction of the Panama canal; as a builder of railroads and as administrator of the Chinese Eastern railway." In former years this medal has been awarded to Thomas A. Edison, George Westinghouse, Alexander Graham Bell, Alfred Noble, General Goethals, Orville Wright, Lord Kelvin and Guglielmo Marconi. A total membership of 53,000 engineers is represented in the societies which joined in making the award.

While with the Great Northern Mr. Stevens built the Cascade tunnel, 13,873 feet long. From 1905 to 1907 he was chief engineer of the Panama canal and in the latter year director of the Isthmian canal commission. He was president of several railroads and vice president, chief engineer or manager of a group of others.

He headed the American Railway mission to Russia in 1917-1918, was director of a corps of railway experts in Manchuria, and from 1919 to 1923 was president of the interallied technical board, supervising the Siberian railways. Mr. Stevens is seventy-two years old and has been making his home in North Carolina for the last two years.

MRS. WILHELMY SAVED BY FRIEND

Doctor Advised Operation Friend Said Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First

St. Paul, Minnesota.—"I was all run-down from overwork and worry, had no appetite, could not sleep at night, and looked like a corpse. I have six children (five boys and one girl) and did not get any strength after my last baby was born. I was getting worse and thinner every day. The doctor said I had to go to the Hospital but this I could not do on account of my family. So I went to a friend of mine and told her what the doctor had told me and she said, 'Now do as I tell you. Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I have done. It helped me.' So I started taking the Vegetable Compound and I noticed after the first few bottles that I felt considerably better. After taking 9 or 10 bottles I got over my fainting spells. Everybody who sees me now notices the great improvement in my health. I am gaining in weight and strength and am feeling fine. Eat well and sleep good nights. Any woman can write to me and I will answer her letter." — Mrs. MARY WILHELMY, 309 Duke Street, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Rice Griddle Cakes

2 eggs, well beaten
½ to 1 cup sweet milk
2 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup well cooked rice
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix ingredients thoroughly, adding enough flour to make a medium batter. Bake the same as any griddle cakes.

Stop That Cough!

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—"My oldest boy always had bronchial trouble from the time he was a little baby. The least cold would settle in his bronchial tubes and cause him to have a cough. He would fill up with phlegm and choke. I gave him medicine but nothing relieved him of this condition until I gave him Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and after giving him this medicine he got along fine. He has never had another spell of bronchial trouble." —Mrs. John Cronk, 187 Union St.

Lacks Wheels and Railroads

Medieval Foochow Does Foreign Business of Huge Proportions.

Washington. — "Foochow, China, scene of a reported demonstration against foreign traders, has no railroad tracks nor any wheeled vehicles on its streets. It lies 34 miles from the sea, but it does a provincial and foreign business of huge proportions," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Few travelers go there. Those who do find themselves in a place where the charm of medieval custom vies with the stench of medieval sewage disposal.

"Paradoxically, if one wishes a sweet-smelling spot he should seek out one of the 47 factories which make Foochow's flower-scented tea. These factories buy more than $400,000 worth of white jasmine flowers yearly, which they use for heating with the tea leaves to produce the delicate fragrance. The women wear a permanent headdress of swords and daggers.

"To reach Foochow one sails from Hongkong or Shanghai—it lies midway between these ports—and opposite the north end of Formosa (Taiwan) the ship steams up the Min, or Snake, river.

"But the ocean-going vessel must halt at Pagoda Anchorage, nearly ten miles below Foochow, because, half a century ago, stone-laden barges were sunk here to repel an enemy attack. Legend has it that the sword-and-dagger headdress of the women is a memento of a siege when China was a group of petty, warring states, and her men went forth to fight an army of invaders. When the men were driven back inside the city walls the women seized their weapons, and sallied forth to a glorious victory over the astonished marauders.

River Traffic Problem.

"Above Pagoda Anchorage the visitor finds a river traffic problem as acute as the automobile congestion of an American city. Gone are the tea-clippers, the ships that carried the name and aroma of Foochow to London tables, and gone are the famous Foochow pirate craft. But in the vessel mass one still discerns the seagoing junks with sterns as high as those of the old Spanish galleons and curious up-river craft which find water highways through Fukien province. These jostle for places alongside house boats of ancient design and bright, new steam launches.

"When a small boat lands you at Foochow wharf, it still is three miles overland to the vine-grown, towered walls of the old city. No taxis await your signal, no cabs, not even a jinrikisha. Only the native chairs are available. The streets of the ancient city are too crooked, too badly paved, and too narrow for even the most primitive sort of vehicles on wheels.

"Ancient as Foochow seems to the western world, it is a sort of Wild West in the eyes of Peking or Canton. In the days of Confucius, China proper looked upon the province that now is Fukien as a region of barbarians. The walled city did not rise until the Ming period, which covered the years that America was discovered and colonized.

"Tea, timber and paper, load down most of the outgoing boats. From up-river come many cargoes of fruit, cotton for the Foochow mills, and rice. Piled on its wharves are wheat, peas, onions, salt, silver, white plums and dates. The overland journey to Foochow is avoided even by the natives; but the Min and its branches give the city a waterway access to 27 walled towns and to many smaller villages.

Have Secret Lacquer Process.

"Foochow imports the sap of the so-called varnish tree, and uses it in a lacquer of exceptional luster. One family, for many generations, held a secret process which made Foochow lacquer-ware far-famed. This process required applications for a dozen or more times.

"On a mountain not far from the city one encounters the dog-worshipers—easily distinguishable for the peculiar coiffure of their women; a scaffold-like effect with a cord dangling before the face. This is worn because of a myth which holds that a dog once saved the city and the gods rewarded him by subjecting him to a process by which he was to become human after his incarceration for seven times forty days.

"Even nearer the city is 'Doctrine Hill,' which derives this one of its many names from the residence there of a certain learned man who accumulated a library—a 540-volume shelf—known as 'The Doctrine of the Universe.' On this same hill are 'six times six' wonderful things, including the inevitable rock showing the footprints of Buddha.

"On another hill is a place where a very pious priest used to sit reading a book. One night there was a thunderstorm which split the rock, but its parts fell so that a cone was formed so the holy man might read in peace.

"A familiar touch is manifest on Black Rock Hill—a touch which makes the name carvers of the East and West kin—by the inscription left there by two climbers, which reads:

"In the reign of the Emperor Kuang Hsu, 2nd day, 12th moon, 21st year, Ch'en Hsiao and Liu Hsiao, cross-legged on the sumhit of Black Rock Hill."

General Health Is Improving

Some Diseases, However, Show an Increase, According to Survey.

Washington.—The general health of the country as a whole has been steadily improving for more than a decade.

Ten years ago the death rate from all causes was about 1,500 per 100,000 population. Each year thereafter marked a steady decline until 1918, the influenza year, when the rate jumped above 1,800. The rate quickly returned to normal and is today about 1,100.

Striking Contrast.

The most striking contrast is found in the death rate for typhoid fever. Twelve years ago the death rate from this disease was about 24 per 100,000, while today it is less than 7, a drop to less than one-third the earlier figure. The improvement in the rate for tuberculosis, while less marked, is very significant. Its rate has declined steadily from about 140 to less than 100 in a little more than a decade. At the present rate of improvement the danger from the disease will soon be less than from several other causes.

In the case of half a dozen common diseases the death rate has been reduced to one-half or one-third the rate of ten years ago. Deaths from rheumatism are but one-half as numerous as a decade ago. The danger from scarlet fever is about one-third what it was ten years ago, and a similar improvement has occurred in regard to bronchitis, measles, diphtheria, meningitis and liver complaints.

A contrast is found in the case of malaria, which has become slowly but steadily more dangerous in this period, until its death rate has almost doubled. The same is true of smallpox, which also has almost doubled its death rate. Diseases of the brain have become more deadly. There has also been a steady increase in the death rate from heart disease. The rate for organic diseases of the heart is at present nearly 170 per 100,000, while that of tuberculosis is less than 100. The death rate from pneumonia.

The jump in the death rate of influenza and its violent fluctuations is one of the curiosities of these statistics. Ten years ago the rate from this cause was very small, or only about 10 per 100,000. In 1918, the war year, the death rate from this disease was 300. The following year it dropped to 98 and three years later rose to 133. The death rate from cancer has also increased.

Ten years ago the rate of violent deaths was about 90 per 100,000, while today it is about 70. There has been a marked decline in suicides. The rate was 16 per 100,000 a decade ago, while today it is a little over 10.

She Belongs in the Ponce Parade

Ramondine Ponce of St. Augustine, Fla., is shown above teaching her pony, Nino, to read a cross-word puzzle bearing the name of Ponce de Leon. She will ride Nino at the head of the Spanish pageant of 3,000 people in the Ponce de Leon celebration in April. Although only nine years old little Ramondine is, historically, one of the most interesting and important personages in the United States, for she is a direct descendent of Florida's first governor general, Ponce de Leon. All of her ancestors bore the name of Ponce de Leon until 1821 when records show the "De Leon" was dropped.

FINDS ESKIMOS THRIVE UNDER U. S. TUTELAGE

Danish Explorer, After Making a Survey of Greenland, Praises American Methods.

Copenhagen, Denmark. — American methods of treating and caring for the Eskimos were urged upon Denmark by Dr. Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, in a recent lecture here before the upper and lower houses of parliament. Doctor Rasmussen has just returned to Denmark after an extensive survey, of Eskimo life in Greenland, Canada and Alaska.

American Eskimos, the explorer said, were better educated than those living in Canada and Greenland, spoke good English and in every way demonstrated their ability to meet the white man on his own ground.

"The Americans are absolutely right in their viewpoint," the speaker said, "that as soon as a primitive race has made even the slightest acquaintance with civilization, even in its crudest form, it is impossible to preserve the primitivity of such a race. It is then far better to make these men and women into ordinary American citizens, with the citizens' privileges and duties."

Doctor Rasmussen declared that the importance of the work of the American bureau of education, as represented by the many schools for natives in Alaska, could never be overemphasized. American school teachers, he said, not only taught the natives the English language but helped them in many other ways, such as in the establishment of co-operative stores and the carrying on of infant-welfare work.

He criticized the policy of the Danish government in attempting to keep the Greenland Eskimo away from any contact with the white man, and pointed out that while the Greenland Eskimo lived in a state of primitive squalor, it was no strange thing for the Alaskan natives to own motorboats and large reindeer herds, and to be supplied with the most modern equipment wherewith to carry on his family life and business.

One fault with the American system, Doctor Rasmussen said, was that often the Alaskan native was not taught properly how to read and write his native tongue, and he urged that this be given particular attention in the case of the Greenland Eskimo. Reindeer, he said, had proved a great source of wealth to the Alaskan natives, and he urged that herds be established in Greenland wherever possible.

Few Egyptians Read

Cairo, Egypt.—Egyptians who can read and write do not number in excess of 1,000,000 out of a population of 14,000,000, according to an estimate made by the Egyptian Gazeteer based on the census of several years ago. The same paper gives at about 100,000 the men who have had higher education.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

Three Cents a Day

—just three cents. Almost too small to think about. Yet three cents a day will you and your family if you are in a "Preferred" occupation;

—it will give your wife from $1,250 to $3,250 if you are accidentally killed;

—it will provide a weekly income if you are disabled by an accident;

—it will pay $250 at once in case of natural death.

The Ten Dollar Combination Policy

—the best thing insurance offers. In addition to the benefits named above, there are also many others, covering injuries and disabilities. Think of it—a policy that includes both accident and life insurance—at three cents a day.

The Bellefonte Trust Company
Is Visiting Its Friends.

Starting this week the Bellefonte Trust Company of Bellefonte, Pa., is sending personal representatives to see its friends all over this community about their banking needs.

Our service has always been available to all the people---old and young, rich and poor---but now we are going to the people with personal explanations of our banking services and personal welcome to everyone who needs them.

We bespeak your courtesies for our representative when he calls on you and believe you will find the time you give him is not only well spent but well invested.

Our special representatives are W. R. SWAN, L. J. BRENNAN and THOMAS J. DALY.
